CONFEREES SPLIT ON TRANSFER RULE IN TRACKAGE BILL

Disagreement Will Be Reported and House Must Take Initiative.

After a session of an hour and a half, in the office of the Senate District Committee yesterday afternoon, the House and Senate conferees on the trackage bill agreed to disagree. On this the conferees were unanimous. This modification will come from the House massacre. end of the Capitol.

May Hasten Agreement.

The disagreement of the conferees does not necessarily mean that Congress will adjourn without taking steps for the extension of the street railway tracks to Union Station. While on the face of things it means delay, on the face of things it means delay, on the other hand the very fact a disagreement is reported may hasten an agreement when the bill again goes to conference as it is expected it will. The House can insist on its amendments or it can recede from them in whole or in part Should it insist on them and the bill g back to conference under those conditions, there will be no possibility of a public will walk to Union Station for New Esch Measure Pro-

Senator Gallinger, chairman of the District Committee and head of the conference committee named by the Senate said last evening that he assumed Congress would pass a bill for the extension of the tracks before the end of the session. He hardly thinks it likely that the trackage situation will be left as it is indefinitely without action by Con-

Split Over Transfers.

Senator Gallinger would not discuss points of difference that proved insurmountable were the universal transfer amendment and the amendment which gives the Commissioners power to make all needful rules and regulations for the government of the railroads. This amendment imposes a heavy penalty for violation of any of its provisions or for violation of any order or regulation of the Commissioners. The penalty is a fine not to exceed $1,000.

As a substitute for these two amendments, a proposition was submitted to the conference yesterday to place the street railways of the District under the control of the Interstate Commerce the control of the Interstate Commerce Commission. While there was consid-tion, or the right of any such corporation bill. The transportation item is increased by erable support for this plan, it was impossible to secure its adoption. Reperty. resentative Sims insisted on the universal transfer proposition and would not

Quote Court Decisions.

One of the arguments that was urged in conference, and is being urged elsewhere against the amendments of the House, is that both are unconstitutional. As to universal transfers, the street railway officials declare emphatically that there are plenty of Supreme Cour decisions that show the amendment on this subject to be unlawful.

It is asserted the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the Minnesota rate case is in point both as to the universal transfer amendment and as to the amendment that gives the Con missioners control over the street rail roads because excessive are imposed for violation of these pro-

Indian of Scalping Fame Describes His Exploits PAFF IS NOMINEE

There was a touch of wild life, but no ! on Indian Affairs yesterday when Chief Flenty Coos, of the Crow Indians, with friends. several members of his tribe, appeared in opposition to opening the Crow reservation, in Montana.

The old chief himself made a mos interesting witness. He was the only one of the Indian delegation unable to speak English, and he gave his testi-mony through the aid of two graduates of the Carlisle school. He could give a Frenchman lessons in the art of gesticulation, and from the evidence presented to the committee yesterday it would seem that the Crow language is largely made up of signs.
